Eight Students inducted into National German Honor Society

The first eight members have been inducted into Delta Epsilon Phi National Honor Society for Students of German in Dorchester County's new chapter, established just a year ago. Cambridge-South Dorchester High School students Sarah Condon, Connor McCroy, Margaret Pantzloff, and Summer Reid and North Dorchester High School students Jacob Dashiell, Chloe James, Aaron Palamaras, and Seth Talley were inducted into the Honor Society in a ceremony conducted in German by Jennifer Eames, the schools' German teacher. To qualify for the Honor Society, students must have taken at least three semesters of German with at least a grade point average of 3.6 in the language, and no lower than a 3.0 GPA overall.
