Choptank Elementary School Hosts Career Fair

Choptank Elementary School hosted a Career Day for its 5th grade students on April 25, opening its doors to local business owners and community members to introduce their chosen career paths and fields of study. The purpose of the event was to encourage students to begin thinking about their future occupations so they could obtain information to develop goals that will lead them to success.

The students rotated in groups around the presenters, having opportunities to ask questions about the careers, such as “What skills do you use at your job?” and “Did you have to attend college for your career?”. Presenters brought materials and visuals as well as handouts and tokens students were given as reminders.

The school thanks those who offered their time and expertise at the event:

- Meighan Chisholm, pilot and airplane technician
- Emily Nossick and Kalil Stanley, Young Life
- Officers M. Wagner and K. Washington, Cambridge Police Department
- Michelle Dietrich, nurse at Choptank Elementary School
- Dorchester County EMTs and paramedics
- Students from the Dorchester Career and Technology Center Cosmetology Program
- Dave Morrissette, Athletics Director, North Dorchester High School
- Lashona Coleman and Zebrina Rhem, DCPS social workers
- Nancy Blades and students from the Dorchester County Career and Technology Center Culinary Arts Program
